

The Synthetic Treatise

First point is contested.¹

The argument continues on this line and then wraps down to a further line to exercise paragraph joining.

Second point follows directly after it.²

1. A note concerning cathedrals and central planning.

2. A note concerning bazaars and emergent order.

Chapter Two

Third point stands on its own here.³

A closing paragraph without any markers, whose only job is to give the composer ordinary prose to assemble.

3. A note concerning the commons and shared governance.

An epilogue page with plain text and no notes at all, so the running header repetition test has a third data point.